3 FORMER WORLD WAR I AIRCRAFT HANGARS

AT OLD SARUM AIRFIELD

GV II*

Group of one single and two paired aircraft storage hangars. 1917 design, built 1918. Piers, curtain walls and gantries brickwork, rendered externally, 'Belfast' roof trusses, asphalt covering to roof.

PLAN: each hangar is in 16 bays, Hangars 1 and 3 being paired with a central row of brick columns, and each has subsidiary workshop and storage space in low annexes on the long sides. Single-span hangar was built for the Aircraft Repair Section, with a detached workshop (qv) to the rear. The whole group extends approx. 250m E-W, with a large concrete manoeuvring area (aprons) around the entrances and the airfield side.

EXTERIOR: windows are the original painted steel casements, set as a high clerestory to the long sides of the hangars in 14 of the 16 bays; they are doubled 24-pane units incorporating 4-pane pivoted lights to each bay.

The infill walling above and below is in brick (half-brick thickness), but on the S (airfield) side of each hangar broad asbestos sheet cladding has been added. Each of the hangars has full width and height doors sliding to external brick gantries: each of these comprises 6 doors suspended to overhead gear protected by a deep projecting weathering, and sliding to ground rails into their external brick gantries, the latter having three pairs of piers linked at the head by segmental brick diaphragm arches. The paired hangars also have, between the doors, a brick pier with deep central recess carrying a large rain-water downpipe. Above the horizontal dressing to the door track is a flat segmental pediment to each shed, with close-set vertical joint divisions to metal cladding, and a wide central ventilation louvre. Flanking the long sides are the single-storey ancillary spaces with near-flat felted roofs weathered to the curtain walls and buttresses. These are in brick, with 9-pane casements, the upper 6 panes horizontally pivot-hung. Sheds 1 and 3 each have a 14-bay range to the S, with 2 entrances in the wall to N. Shed 2 has to the S a 7-bay range a boiler room, with flue cropped at the eaves, and 2 separated single-bay units: on the N side two gabled sheds have been added, parallel with the main wall. All roofs have a continuous gabled ridge lantern in patent glazing: this is probably original, and appears in a photograph taken in 1931.

INTERIOR: The paired sheds have a central row of brick piers, joined longitudinally by a series of 'diaphragm' walls to low segmental arches. The 'Belfast' trusses are formed from small-section timbers, the top and bottom chords sandwiching a mesh of closely-spaced cross-bracing; at the supports is further shear strengthening with a length of diagonal boarded bracing, and a raking strut rises from brick corbelling near the heads of the piers, which continue through to the eaves levels. There are continuous runs of longitudinal cross-bracing in the vertical plane, and extra horizontal bracing to the bottom chord in the end bays. Trusses carry small purlins and closely-spaced rafters, with continuous sheathing in diagonal boarding.

HISTORY: After Duxford in Cambridgeshire and Leuchars in Scotland, Old Sarum retains the most complete group of technical buildings representative of a Training Depot Station of the First World War period. It also, uniquely for any of the key surviving sites of the period up to 1918, retains its grass flying field with none of the perimeter tracks and other interventions characteristic of the post-1938 period. Its position close to Salisbury Plain also gives it an association with three key sites in the development of military aviation - Larkhill, Upavon and Netheravon. It was one of 63 Training Depot Stations in existence in November 1918. Each TDS comprised three flying units, each having a coupled general service shed and one repair hangar (Old Sarum's being the only example to have survived). Other specialist buildings, such as carpenters' shops, dope and engine repair shops and technical and plane stores characterised these sites. The former technical support buildings lie between the hangars and The Portway: domestic buildings (not included) were located to the north of the road. In 1917 the War Office bought land at Ford Farm for airfield development, but shortly after the base was renamed Old Sarum (after the hillfort and medieval royal castle and Cathedral to the W), and by September 1918 a series of 7 hangars (one single repair hangar and 3 paired hangars), motor transport sheds and various workshops had been built; personnel at that time were accommodated in tents. Used at first as a Training Depot Station for day bombing, Old Sarum's position close to the army training areas on Salisbury Plain ensured its retention after 1919 for the School of Army Co-Operation. This ran courses primarily for Army and RAF observers and pilots, and by the end of 1930s Blenheims were flown from the base: foreign visitors included the German Air Attache and in 1939 both the Italian Air Attache and Chief Instructor of the Italian School of Army Co-Operation. The principal work of the base for the first four years of the Second World War was the formation and training of Air Observation Units, although it was also used by the SOE for airdrops into France and early in the war by the Royal Canadian Air Force Unit (110 Squadron) for anti-invasion coast patrols. In February 1944 the hangars were converted into use for housing vehicles being specially prepared for D-Day. After 1947 Old Sarum had become the School of Land/Air Warfare, attended mostly by high-ranking officers of all three services. It was closed as a military base in 1979, much of the immediate area having been since redeveloped as an industrial estate although club flying continues from the airfield. The most westerly of the 3 paired hangars was destroyed by fire in 1986.

Barn at Bishopdown

Farm

GV

Large barn in farm group. C18 and C19. Horizontal weather-boarding on timber framework on brick cill walls, plain tile roofs. A long barn in two sections but with continuous ridge-line, set at right angles to granary (q.v.). Towards the yard are two hipped cart porches, that to the left with corrugated-iron clad doors, that to right with full height plank doors. Lean-to to left half and to right of right porch not of special interest. Return gable to right is half-hipped, and has full height pair of inserted metal-clad doors; left return gable half-hipped, and wall in brickwork, with a loading opening above central door opening flanked by single lights, all of these openings with half-brick segmental heads. Brickwork, in English bond, returns for one bay, and this bay is closed internally by a brick cross-wall. Long far elevation has one pair of flush doors, and one hipped porch, the latter flanked by swept-down roof. There is one 6-parted casement towards the left end. Interior has a total of 10 bays: the northern end (nearer the granary) is C19 with queen-post trusses and 2 purlins, mostly bolted structure; the bay nearest the gable doors has been modified to permit entry of very high loads. The C18 section, also in 5 bays, has strutted queen-post trusses and 2 purlins, and has a narrow aisle to the west side. Apart from some later additions on the yard (east) side, this is a fine barn in mostly original condition. It makes an important complement to the large granary lying at right angles c 6m to the north-east.

shouldered doorway, blocked from inside, and cusped lancet to right. East window of chapel is group of three cusped lancets, continuous string course at east end of church. Chancel has 2-light plate tracery window with hoodmould on south side, 3-light plate tracery window with hoodmould and carved head terminals to east end and three cusped lancets to north side. North side nave has one 3-light plate tracery window and two 2-light plate tracery windows. West window is 4-light geometric decorated-style. Attached to west end and enlarged in C20 is flat-roofed church room and vestry with two 3-light C16- style square-headed windows to west side. Interior: 5-bay nave has plain painted walls, arch-braced collar truss roof on stone corbels with decorative painting on roof. Pointed arcade of 3 double-chamfered arches to south aisle; lean- to roof. South chapel through pointed east arch; braced-collar rafter roof. Chancel has scissor-rafter roof, double chamfered pointed chancel arch, pointed arch to south chapel and door with hoodmould and foliated terminals. Fittings: all original Victorian furnishings. West window and other windows have re-used C13 grisaille glass from Salisbury Cathedral, found in the city ditch in 1933. Chancel windows re-use C18 and early C19 stained glass, north side chancel are good late C19 stained glass windows to Greenly family. Wall tablets in south porch of C18 and early C19, including one with fine lettering to Peter Bathurst of Clarendon Park, died 1718. In the west end of the churchyard are some fragmentary remains of a Medieval church. (N. Pevsner, Buildings of England: Wiltshire, 1975.)

Old Sarum

Old Sarum Airfield: TA Headquarters

II Station headquarters. 1935 - 6. A Bulloch, architectural advisor to the Air Ministry's Directorate or Works and Buildings. Drawing No 135/35. Flemish bond brick, slate roof covering to pitched area, concrete structure with asphaltic finish to flat section.

PLAN: A main range in 2 storeys with flat roofs is in double-banded offices, with central entrance through a small lobby to large circulating hall, from which a central passageway is taken through on the main axis to a doorway at the rear. This range is flanked at either side by single-storey pavilions with hipped roofs, and across the rear a similar hipped unit, forming an asymmetrical 'H' in plan. The main open-well staircase is in the link building.

EXTERIOR: Small-paned timber sashes to all windows. The central 2-storey range is in 7 bays, with large upper lights, but smaller lower ones to flat segmental heads. A central pair of panelled doors to radial fanlight is set in responds with a moulded arch keystone, and is all original. To each side the pavilions, in the same plane as the 2-storey range, have 3 bays of near-square lights, with 3 on the returns and rear, but the left-hand unit has to the rear an open 3-arched loggia on paired square piers, with voussoir arches to a keystone, and rudimentary capitals and bases. The back of the main range has 2 lights at each level, and returns to the T-arm at the same height, with 3 lights to each level to the NE, but smaller lights and a door, to the stair lobby, on the SW. The transverse rear range, like the pavilions with a high parapet, has 3 lights each side of a pair of doors in arch and responds similar to the front: this was originally the operations room. It returns to 3 bays each end, and 2 on the inner returns. Original hopper-heads and downpipes remain to all elevations.

INTERIOR: plain, retains dog-leg stair and some original joinery.

HISTORY: This is a distinctive design of 1935 by the Air Ministry architect, A Bulloch. Detailing is restrained throughout, but massing, spacing and proportions are carefully considered, in the neo-Georgian style favoured at this period, and influenced by the impact of the Royal Fine Arts Commission, especially though the architect, Sir Edwin Lutyens.

GV II Workshops. 1918. Painted single-skin brick with internal buttresses; corrugated asbestos-cement roofing on steel trusses.

PLAN: a paired single-storey shed in 13 bays with twin gables at each end, formerly a large open space and now sub-divided. On the S side (facing Hangar No 2, qv) is a 2-bay lean-to with boiler house.

EXTERIOR: 12-pane steel casements where original, some later steel replacements. 3 paired plank doors to S, with a brick stack to 2-bay lean-to projection. Pair of doors to left gable of W elevation. Double and single plank doors to N side. Later C20 flat-roofed porch to E end.

HISTORY: After Duxford in Cambridgeshire and Leuchars in Scotland, Old Sarum retains the most complete group of technical buildings representative of a Training Depot Station of the First World War period. Despite the destruction of one of the original three paired hangars, this is one of the most complete hangar groupings of the period up to 1918 in Britain, uniquely relating to an airfield that has been less altered than any other pre-1918 airfield.
